How Citizens Find Schemes

134

schemes published on dosje.gov.in

Six options placed before the Department, on three parts of the website

Each option is shown as a recorded walkthrough of a working prototype, not a picture.

WHAT IS PLACED BEFORE YOU

Three Parts of the Site. Six Options.

The site publishes 134 schemes. Its Target Group filter offers no value for women and girls, transgender persons, persons with disabilities, victims of atrocities or voluntary organisations — and 23 schemes carry no group at all. These options address that. Each part is settled on its own.

The Home Page

THREE OPTIONS

Where most people arrive for the first time.

- A · Explore User Personas — already on the site
- B · Find support for you — five questions
- C · Find offerings for you — one tap

The Schemes Page

TWO OPTIONS

Where a person compares, and where officers and voluntary organisations work.

- A · Pictures of the nine groups, with cards
- B · Filter panel with a table of schemes

The Assistant

ONE OPTION

Reachable from every page, including pages that lead nowhere else.

- A · Samajik Sahayak — the same five questions, in chat

Whichever options are approved, the scheme records must be tagged first. That work is set out under “What Has to Be Done First”.

ALREADY ON THE SITE

► Recorded walkthrough. Moving between groups with the arrows; each shows how many schemes list it.

WHAT IT IS

A picture of one group at a time, with arrows to move between them. It is on the home page today.

WHAT A CITIZEN DOES

Looks at the pictures, sees one that matches, and taps through to the Schemes page.

IN ITS FAVOUR

- Already built and already on the page — the cheapest of all six
- Pictures help people who read slowly, or read another language
- Recognising yourself is easier than describing yourself
- Adds no height to a home page that already runs long

AGAINST IT

- One group at a time, behind arrows — you cannot see whether you are represented without clicking
- Sorts by group alone, not by stage of life, need or State
- Today, choosing a group does not filter the Schemes page; the panel's own promise goes unmet

WHAT THE DEPARTMENT MUST DO FIRST

Make the choice actually open the Schemes page already filtered. This repair is needed in any case — a panel that promises to show services made for you, and then does not, is worse than no panel.

OUR RECOMMENDATION

Repair it, but do not rely on it alone. It serves the visitor who recognises a picture.

Show what I can apply for

No sign-in. No Aadhaar. Nothing you answer is stored. A scheme listing you as its target group is not a decision on your application — the sanctioning authority decides that.

► Recorded walkthrough. Five questions answered; the count falls from 26 to 3, then the schemes are listed.

WHAT IT IS

Five short questions, any of which may be skipped. Skipping widens the answer rather than ending it.

WHAT A CITIZEN DOES

Answers up to five questions — group, stage of life, kind of help, State — and is shown the schemes that list them, each with a place to apply.

IN ITS FAVOUR

- Reads stage of life, need and State, not group alone — which is how entitlement actually works
- No sign-in, no Aadhaar; nothing answered is stored
- The falling count is honest feedback — the visitor watches the answer narrow
- Directs a person with a disability to DEPwD, rather than showing an empty page
- Ends at a place to apply, not at a page of text

AGAINST IT

- Every scheme must be tagged on four axes before it works at all
- Adds roughly 150 pixels to the home page, unless it replaces Our Offerings
- Asks about caste at the second question — the wording needs the Department's approval

WHAT THE DEPARTMENT MUST DO FIRST

Tag all 134 scheme records — the same work every other option needs. Approve the wording of the group question and the reason shown for asking it.

OUR RECOMMENDATION

Recommended for the home page. It answers the question a citizen actually arrives with.

Find offerings for you

TO BE BUILT

► Recorded walkthrough. Three groups tapped in turn; the last is routed to the sibling department.

WHAT IT IS

A row of groups. Tapping one shows the portal, the scheme and the complaint route for that group.

WHAT A CITIZEN DOES

Taps the group that describes them and sees three things they can act on, without answering anything.

IN ITS FAVOUR

- One tap, with no questions to answer
- Shows portals, schemes and complaint routes together, which no other option does
- Each row ends at a real place to apply
- Puts the single-window promise on the home page itself
- Compact — one strip and three rows

AGAINST IT

- Every scheme must be tagged before it works
- Reads group alone, so it is less exact than the five questions
- Needs space on the home page, unless it replaces Our Offerings

WHAT THE DEPARTMENT MUST DO FIRST

Tag all 134 scheme records, and settle which three items are shown for each group.

OUR RECOMMENDATION

A good companion to Option B for the visitor who will not answer questions. Not a replacement for it.

Pictures of the Nine Groups, with Cards

► Recorded walkthrough. Choosing a group from the pictures; the cards below change with it.

WHAT IT IS

A row of pictures for the nine groups, above cards for each scheme.

WHAT A CITIZEN DOES

Picks their group from the pictures, then reads the scheme cards below.

IN ITS FAVOUR

- All nine groups visible at once — no arrows, no scrolling to find yourself
- Pictures work across languages and reading levels
- Cards feel welcoming rather than administrative
- Consistent with how the home page presents groups, so the idea is met twice

AGAINST IT

- Far fewer schemes fit on one screen
- A card has no room for who runs the scheme, or whether it is Central or State
- Two schemes cannot be compared side by side
- Nine illustrations to commission and to keep up to date

WHAT THE DEPARTMENT MUST DO FIRST

Tag all 134 scheme records, and commission nine illustrations.

OUR RECOMMENDATION

Not recommended for this page. The pictures are welcoming, but this is the page where people compare.

Listing is not a decision on any application — the sanctioning authority decides that.

► Recorded walkthrough. Group, stage of life and kind of help ticked together — the filters combine.

WHAT IT IS

Filters down the left; a table on the right showing what a person gets, who runs it, and whether it is Central or State.

WHAT A CITIZEN DOES

Ticks the filters that apply and reads the schemes side by side to see which to apply for.

IN ITS FAVOUR

- Filters combine — group and stage of life and kind of help can be asked for together
- Shows who runs each scheme, and whether it is Central or State
- Many more schemes visible, and comparable
- A count beside each filter warns before an empty result, rather than after it

AGAINST IT

- A table reads as a record rather than an invitation
- Asks the citizen to use the site's own words
- Needs more care on a small screen

WHAT THE DEPARTMENT MUST DO FIRST

Tag all 134 scheme records, including who runs each one and whether it is Central or State.

OUR RECOMMENDATION

Recommended for the Schemes page. Option A's pictures can sit above this panel if the Department wishes to keep them.

Samajik Sahayak — the Same Five Questions, in Chat

ALREADY ON THE SITE

RECOMMENDED

- Recorded walkthrough. Opened from an ordinary page, then answered one question at a time.

WHAT IT IS

The same five questions, asked one at a time in a chat window that is already built and reachable from every page.

WHAT A CITIZEN DOES

Opens the assistant from whichever page they are on, answers on their phone, and is given schemes to open.

IN ITS FAVOUR

- Reachable from every page, including pages that lead nowhere else
- One question per screen suits a mobile phone
- Works in Hindi without a second design
- Already built — only the scheme branch is new
- States plainly that it cannot decide or change an application

AGAINST IT

- A button in the corner is found only by those looking for it
- It covers the page on a small screen
- Harder to use with a screen reader

WHAT THE DEPARTMENT MUST DO FIRST

Tag all 134 scheme records, and ask the existing vendor to add the scheme branch.

OUR RECOMMENDATION

Recommended, alongside whichever home page option is approved. It reaches the person already lost on a page.

TAKEN TOGETHER

How the Options Combine

The three parts are settled separately, so this is a set of courses open to the Department — not a single either-or.

COURSE	HOME PAGE	SCHEMES PAGE	ASSISTANT	WHAT IT MEANS FOR THE CITIZEN
Minimum credible	Repair Option A	Option B	Later	The persona panel finally delivers what it promises, and the Schemes page becomes usable. The cheapest route to a real improvement.
Recommended	Option B, with A repaired	Option B	Yes	Two ways in for two kinds of visitor, one page that can genuinely be filtered, and a conversational route for the person already lost on a page.
Fullest	Option B, with A repaired	Option B, keeping A's pictures above the panel	Yes	As above, and the Schemes page keeps the warmth of the pictures without losing the facts of the table.
Not advised	Option B only	Option A only	Yes	Three separate pieces of work building three copies of the same scheme information, with nothing to keep them in step.

The three parts are independent: a choice on one does not settle the others.

SEQUENCING

What Has to Be Done First

Every option above reads the same information about each scheme. Until it is filled in, none of them can work — which is why the tagging comes before the design.

Stage 1 is the one piece only the Department can do. The Schemes page, the questions, the group pages and the assistant all wait on it.

Five Commitments That Hold Whichever Options Are Approved

1 Nothing here decides a case

No screen and no message states that a person is eligible. The wording throughout is that a scheme lists the person as its target group, and that the sanctioning authority decides. A citizen who acts on a wrong assurance from a government website bears a real cost, and the Department bears the complaint.

2 The boundary of the Department is stated, not hidden

Persons with disabilities are served by the Department of Empowerment of Persons with Disabilities, in this same Ministry. Anyone who indicates a disability is told so plainly and directed to depwd.gov.in, rather than being shown an empty result.

3 No personal information is collected

No sign-in, no Aadhaar, no telephone number, no name and no income figure. Group and stage of life are chosen from fixed options, never typed, and nothing is stored.

4 Nobody is left at a dead end

Every question can be skipped, and skipping widens the answer instead of ending it. Where nothing matches, the screen says so plainly and offers the way back.

5 No number is published from a design file

Only Elderline 14567 is treated as confirmed. Every other helpline and office contact must be verified by the division that owns it before it appears.

What Is Proposed

	THE PART OF THE SITE	WHAT IS PROPOSED	WHO APPROVES
1	The home page	Option B, with Option A repaired	Department of Social Justice & Empowerment
2	The Schemes page	Option B — filter panel with a table	Department of Social Justice & Empowerment
3	The assistant	Yes — it carries the same five questions	Department, with the existing vendor

And approval to begin Stage 1 — filling in the information for all 134 schemes.

This is the one piece of work every option above depends on. Whichever options are approved, it has to begin first, and only the Department can do it.

ALSO REQUIRED FROM THE DEPARTMENT

- Confirmation of the group tags on each scheme
- Approval of the wording of the group question
- A ruling on scope: this Department only, or both
- Verified helpline numbers and office contacts

- Only the division that administers a scheme can confirm who it is for
- It asks a citizen to state their category — the wording should be the Department's, not a designer's
- The Schemes page shows DEPwD schemes while the questions route disability away to DEPwD; one of the two must change
- Only Elderline 14567 is treated as confirmed today

What This Review Does and Does Not Establish

1 The counts are current; the earlier figure of 141 is superseded.

The 134 schemes, and the count against every value of the Target Group filter, were read directly from dosje.gov.in on 8 September 2026. An earlier figure of 141 came from a content export dated 13 June 2026 and no longer matches the site. Where this deck gives a number, it is the live one.

2 No citizens were interviewed.

The findings come from examining the two Ministry websites and comparing them with myScheme, the disability department's site, the National Scholarship Portal and GOV.UK. The groups described are taken from the Department's own Acts, schemes and organisations, not from interviews. Before Stage 3 is built, the questions should be tested with people from those groups.
